TOBACCO SALE WAS RATIFIED

Eighty three Farmers Meet And Say Yes.

Ohio County Held no Meeting so far as yet Learned.

By a vote of 79 to 4 the Daviess county members of the Green River Tobacco Growers' association on Saturday, ratified the sale recently consummated by the board of control of the organization, and arrangements for the delivery will at once be made. The sentiment was overwhelming in favor of endorsing the action of the board of control and thanking the members for their activity in behalf of the association.

Although the meeting had been scheduled for 10 o'clock it did not get down to business until almost 11 o'clock.

District President Henry S. Berry then announced that the tobacco sale which the meeting was to ratify or reject had been made according to samples which were drawn low in order that the members of the association might have as much $9 tobacco as possible.

A statement by Mr. Berry that the prices would run in quarters, bringing $9, 8.75, 8.50, 8.25, 8.00, etc., caused some discussion, some of those present thinking that this arrangement gave the buyer a chance to come below the price expected, but Mr. Berry stated that the board had made this arrangement because it knew that if a farmer had $7.50 tobacco the buyer would not give $8 and the seller would prefer $7.50 to $7.00.

"Uncle Slim" Mulligan arose to oppose the ratification of the sale. He said that the prices were too low, because in 1874, which was a very dry year, he sold his crop for 13 cents all round. He said that by this sale he was not getting what he did last year.

For the first time since the sale was consummated the names of the dealers, who purchased the 20,000,000 pounds of pooled tobacco at price ranging in four grades from $9, 8 and 3 to $6.6 and 3. was reported. The buyers are the American Tobacco company, Imperial Tobacco company, Gallagher, J. M. Vaughn, R. E. O'Flann, James Hodge and S. T. Burns. The apportionment of the counties among these buyers is not yet completed.

The points of delivery in Hancock county are Hawesville and Lewisport, in Daviess county, they are Owensboro, Whiteside and Cuderville. In McLean county, they are Calhoun, Livermore and Sacramento. In Ohio county they are Fordsville and Narrows, and in Breckinridge county the only point is Glendale.

The opinion seems to have prevailed in some quarters that the buyers who patronize the auction house would not be in the list of purchasers of the pooled crop according to an agreement to either buy unpoled tobacco or pooled tobacco exclusively. However, President Berry states that the agreement of the buyers was that they would give up the old auction house and would not ride for tobacco.

If there was any meeting of the Ohio county poolers of the association at Fordeville it must have been a very quiet affair, as nobody in Fordsville could be reached by telephone, who knew anything about it, but it is thought that the poolers of that county will make no objection but will deliver their crop at the points designated.—Owensboro Inquirer.

Home Warehouse Sells 1908 Crop.

The Green River Equity Warehouse company has sold all of its pooled tobacco of the 1908 crop to Mr. J. M. Vaughn at prices ranging from $10 for the best grade of leaf and lugs down to $5 for nondescript and $3 for all trash. It is advisable that the farmers pooling with this organization should handle and classify their tobacco properly in order that the best results may be obtained, and each and every one receive what his tobacco is worth.

Mr. Jeff Smith, formerly of Pleasant Ridge, who is an experienced handler of tobacco, will be the grader. The deliveries will begin immediately.—Owensboro Messenger.

Owensboro Star to Move.

The following taken from the Owensboro Inquirer will be of interest to quite a few of our readers who were recently induced to become subscribers to the new Owensboro Republican paper, which, according to its traveling representative was established to offset the influence of the Owensboro Messenger.

R. I. Downs, of Livermore, made a deal Thursday, whereby he takes charge of the Star, a Republican weekly published in Owensboro. The plant of the concern will be removed to Livermore, where Mr. Downs will issue the paper.

A. D. McDonald, of Owensboro, who has been manager of the paper, will go to Terre Haute, Ind., where he has accepted a position.

Preston Morton Post.

At a call meeting of Preston Morton Post, No. 4, G. A. R. Hartford, Ky., Dec. 12th, 1908, the following named comrades were elected: A. W. Mills, Commander; G. W. Bunker, senior Vice Commander; V. M. Stewart, Junior Vice Commander; J. M. Bishop, Surgeon; Louis Gunther, Quarter Master; J. A. Bennett, Chaplain; Alex Grigsby, Officer of Day, J. W. Barr, officer of Guard.

OTHER CHARGES LIKELY FOR BANK WRECKERS.

They Obtained Money Under False Pretext and Should Be Indicted.

Additional indictments will probably be returned against the officials of the two defunct banks in Owensboro. This was made evident on Monday morning when Circuit Judge Birkhead gave his instructions to the grand jury. He declared that if the members of the jury did not return indictments upon the offense of obtaining money under false pretenses it would be the fault of the jury.

Judge Birkhead's strong charge in this connection is a result of the sensational testimony in the trial of James H. Parrish at Hawesville. Several witnesses at Hawesville have testified that officers of the Owensboro Savings Banks and Trust company have borrowed large sums of money for a short length of time for the purpose of padding their quarterly statements. It was on Saturday that Assistant Cashier Ogden of the Owensboro Banking company testified to Parrish. Having borrowed $10,000 for one hour on December 31, 1907 the day a quarterly statement was required to be published.

Section 1208 of the Kentucky statutes says: If any person by any false pretense, statement or token, with intent to commit a fraud, obtain from another, money, property or other things which may be the subject of larceny, or if he obtain by any false pretense, statement or token, with like intention the signature of another to a writing, the false-making would be forgery, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one or more than five years.

The opinion of the court of appeals in the action of the commonwealth against Schwartz is interesting in this connection: A bank officer, who by a known false statement of the condition of the bank obtains a loan of money to his bank which it has collected for the customer and has in its possession, is guilty of the crime of obtaining money by false pretenses and liable therefor under our statute.

The fact that the possession of the fund was not obtained by false pretense, does not render the officer guilty under the statute. Where the title to the property may pass without a delivery of the possession, the crime is completed if such title is obtained by the false pretense. Judge Birkhead in his instructions also called attention to immoral resorts in Owensboro and other crimes. He indicated to the members of the jury that they should not spend much time on the negroes who are charged with robbing a white man in the resort in Owensboro. He declared that the white man deserved to lose something for association with such infamous characters.

EQUITY TOBACCO HOUSE OPENS

And Large Quantities of To- bacco Coming In.

Everybody Satisfied With Prices Grading and Treatment Generally.

Under the management of the Imperial Tobacco Company, of Kentucky to whom it has been leased for this season, the Equity Tobacco Warehouse at Hartford was open for business Monday. Announcement of the opening had been made only a few days previous, but more than sixty loads of tobacco were on the ground to be unloaded. Of course it was impossible to dispose of this much tobacco in one day, hence a considerable amount of it had to be stored on wagons to be unloaded the following day. More than one hundred thousand pounds have already been received.

Mr. Tom Barron is manager for the Imperial Tobacco Company and is giving entire satisfaction to the growers. Mr. T. F. Tanner, grader and Mr. Dudley Ford, Chairman of the Finance committee are present to look after the interests of the growers in the matter of grading the tobacco. They likewise are giving entire satisfaction, both to the growers and to the company.

Slight friction is caused by reason of the fact that a few growers who desire that their tobacco go in on this sale failed before October 20th, the date fixed by the County Union for the closing of the pooling pledges, to sign same. There is only an occasional party who has failed to sign and now desires to sell this way. The resolution of the County Union, as interpreted by the Finance Committee makes the rule absolute and it is being enforced to the letter so we are informed.

It is the intention of the Imperial Tobacco Company to ready and handle, here, the tobacco being received. This arrangement will extend the date at which the purchase will be moved from the house to some time in the early fall and will furnish employment for a goodly number of laborers until that period. This arrangement is much better for the Hartford people than the arrangement of last year, the tobacco then being hauled out within a week or ten days after it was received.

It is estimated that fully a million pounds of tobacco will be received at the Hartford house. This at the estimated average price of $7.50 per hundred will bring the farmers of Ohio county $75,000.00. This will be a neat little sum of money for only a portion of one year's tobacco crop a goodly amount of same having been pledged to the new organization.

This pool and sale should fully demonstrate to the Ohio county farmers that their tobacco can be handled at home with convenient points of delivery, at as good profit to them as it can be handled at any other place where inaccessible points of delivery are provided. Had all of Ohio county farmers joined the Ohio county pool it is more than probable that several points of delivery would have been provided, in which case it would have been even more convenient than delivering at Hartford as under the present arrangement.

Locals Should Send Delegates.

Every Local Union of the A. S. of E., that has ever had an organized existence is earnestly requested to send delegates to the regular meeting of the county union which will convene at Hartford Friday and Saturday January 1 and 2, 1909. Let us have the most largely attended county union ever held.

NO EXTRA SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

Govenor Wilson Sets Rumor At Rest in Written Formal Statement.

A Frankfort dispatch says:—Gov. Wilson will not call an extra session of the Legislature to consider the county unit bill or any subject which should be legislated at regular sessions. He will call an extra session only in case of an emergency.

Gov. Wilson gave out the following statement:

"Somebody asks me every day, and sometimes twice a day, whether I am going to call an extra session, and this question was again prompted to-day by a publication indicating that petitions are being gotten up asking the Governor to call an extra session about the county unit bill.

"I have no idea of calling an extra session. I do not know of any emergency which requires it. The law provides for regular sessions to attend to measures which are usually brought up for legislation and it does not contemplate calling an extra session except in an emergency. The consideration of questions like the county unit bill is not an emergency, but is a question of the character that is usually and properly considered at the regular sessions. The desire for legislation on such questions, no matter how strong, does not constitute an emergency."

Death of Clarence M. Barnett.

The sad news of the death of Clarence M. Barnett was received by his friends and relatives in Hartford Wednesday. Mr. Barnett was a son of David Lowrey Barnett and Sallie Baird Barnett and was born and raised at Beda, where he still has many relatives and friends. He has been away from the county for many years. He is survived by a young wife, who was Miss Louise Scott, and three brothers, John L. Richard and James M. Barnett, and two sisters, Mrs. Rebecca Marks and Mrs. Sallie Shown. Mr. Barnett has been residing at Columbus Miss., for several years and suffered an attack of appendicitis about three months ago. An operation was successful, but complication developed which resulted in his death. His funeral and burial took place at Columbus yesterday.

A Change in Telephonedom.

A force of men employed by the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company is removing the exchanges at Hartford and Beaver Dam, heretofore used by that company. We are informed by Mr. Burk, Manager for the Rough River Telephone Company that his company has leased the lines of the Cumberland Company in and near Hartford, and Beaver Dam, for a period of fifteen years, and that the patrons of the Rough River Telephone Company will be allowed the service of the lines now used by the Cumberland at an additional cost of 15¢ per month for residences and 25¢ per month for business houses. He claims that this will be a saving to those who have heretofore been compelled to keep both phones and that it will give additional and better service to the old subscribers of the Rough River and Cumberland lines. However, it will be optional with the subscribers whether or not they pay the additional cost to secure the extra service. The Cumberland long line, Ky.

NEW TOBACCO SOCIETY FORMED

For Purpose of Controlling
The Entire Output.

Burley Society Only a Branch--

Kentuckian Named as President.

Complete and definite formation of the largest tobacco-selling organization in the world was effected last Thursday says the Louisville Herald when prominent men representing a majority of tobacco-growing States in this country met in the Louisville Hotel and formed the Union Tobacco Society an institution which will seek to pool the tobacco output of the entire country and which will deal with the American Tobacco Company and independent buyers as a unit.

In this successful launching of this society of which the Kentucky Burley Society, formerly the largest organization of its kind in existence, becomes only a part, the most advanced step in unionizing the farmers for the success-ful sale of their products was taken.

Provided the new society approaches the degree of success attained by the Kentucky Society, its sale of tobacco in the future will make all former transactions seem diminutive, and will establish a record in the ordinary channels of trade without parallel.

After several hours of conference the various men present, representing a large majority of the tobacco-growing interests of the country, announced that the society had been successfully launched; that its work would be for the purpose of protecting and preserving the interests of the farmer.

Immediately afterward a special committee was appointed to map out plans for the opening operations of the big society to draft constitution and by-laws and to outline plans for securing a pledge for a great 1909 pool, which is to contain the entire output of the season.

An election of officers was held and the following were chosen.

M. O. Hughes, Bowling Green, President; J. S. Doss, Greenville, Ky., Secretary; H. C. Hesley, of Halesboro, Mich.; Clarence LeBus, of Cynthiana, Ky., and H. F. Ray, of Lake Ind., were chosen as a Board of Directors which with the executive officers, will constitute the legislative body to direct the affairs of the new society in its infancy.

The members of the directorate are men who have had life-long experience in tobacco affairs, and their choice occasioned wide gratification among all identified with the movement.

Of special pleasure to tobacco growers of the state is the selection of Clarence LeBus, President of the Kentucky Burley Society, who was the leading figure in the big sale successfully concluded a short time ago, when the Burley Society sold three fourths of its 1906 and 1907 pooled crop to the American Tobacco Company for $12,000,000.

W. C. McChord, Chairman of the special committee on constitution and by-laws which will form the first operations of the society in the way of pooling is a member of the Legislature from Washington county and was the author of the McCord tobacco bill, introduced at the last session of the Legislature. For many years Mr. McCord has been a prominent worker for the tobacco growing interests. D. L. Pendleton, of Winchester, his fellow committee-man, is a prominent young lawyer of the State.

The significance and magnitude of the society formed is without parallel in the annual of the State as a tobacco-producing section, its organization is taken to indicate the dawn of a new era in tobacco affairs and the work is of a stupendous character. All tobacco growers of the entire country will be organized in the various districts, according to plans with special view toward having growers of each particular kind of tobacco in societies of their own.

The products of all will be pledged to one great pool, and negotiations for its sale will be carried on only through the one official body of the national organization. Inspectors and graders will review the products each year and adjust prices which will be compared and graded with other products of the pool, after which the various prices will be given to all buyers.

At the conclusion of conference the officials departed for their respective homes immensely satisfied with the work they had accomplished. They declare that the new society will be one of the greatest organizations ever formed and that its results will be rich in reward for the farmers.

Magazine of Good Cheer.

Here is the unique editorial plan.

The Modesty of Women
naturally makes them shrink from the indecent questions, the obnoxious examinations, and unpleasant local treatments, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women. Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription write in appreciation of the cure which dispenses with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures. It is strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper; contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicine now entering into its composition has the full endorsement of those most eminent in the several schools of medical practice. Some of these numerous and strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients, will be found in a pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, also in a booklet mailed free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay, or non-professional testimonials.

The most intelligent women now-a-days insist on knowing what they take as medicine instead of opening their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulping down whatever is offered them. "Favorite Prescription" is of KNOWN COMPOSITION. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound. If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge by letter. All such communications are held sacredly confidential.

To show that beauty, and honor and kindness and joy have not vanished from off the face of the earth, nor out of the hearts of men; to recognize and exploit the good in social, business, and public life; to find in individuals and in families the secret of the life worth living and then tell these secrets to other individuals and families; to search out and tell in simple, direct language the romance of self-sacrifice, of noble endeavor, of high achievement, of devotion to others—not forgetting the humble and obscure while admiring the brilliant and famous; to spread the contagion of good until men and women and little children in every great city and every remote hamlet shall be caught in the epidemic; to come close to the hearts of these men and women and little children and draw them, if we may, close to us in mutual sympathy and helpfulness; to encourage and join in their work and their play; to provide stories and music, and pictures, and fun; to arouse enthusiasm; to awaken ambition; to guide this enthusiasm and this ambition into practical worthy, successful efforts; to be a magazine that loves and is proud of the people both in city and country, in mansion and cottage in high position and at the work bench, and that shall win the love and pride of these people in return—this is The Circle plan.

In Memory.

On last Thursday morning, Dec. 3, one of God's angles visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Thomas, and claimed for its own little Anna May—the pet of the home, aged 13 months and 22 days.

She leaves a father, mother, four sisters and one brother besides a host of friends to mourn her loss.

It was very hard to give her up the little darling but God knows best, and his will, not ours, be done; and remember dear parents and little sisters. Anna May is only asleep in Jesus and she will be with other loved ones, watching and waiting for us on the other side. Then let us so live, that when our summons comes to join that immortal throng, we may be as white and pure as little Anna May.

Weep not dear ones for Anna May. She has only gone before; And if we will only trust and pray, We'll meet her on the other shore.

$5,097,825 LOSS FROM FOREST FIRES

In West Virginia Alone, During the Year.

$89,640 Expended in Effort to Suppress the Destructive Conflagrations

"The unprecedented destruction this season by forest fires in West Virginia has called the attention of the people, as never before, to the necessity of better protection to woods and watersheds says Hu Maxwell chairman of the West Virginia Conservation Commission. "The relationship between denuded mountains and floods is better understood than formerly and the problem of a future timber supply has ceased to be a question for academic discussion.

"Every one of the 55 counties had one or more fires, some being small and spreading through a few woodlots only, others covering more than 50,000 acres. The areas burned aggregated 1,700,000 acres, approximately one-fifth of the wooded areas of the state. Timber burned amounted to more than 943,500,000 feet-broad measure, about 3 per cent of the entire estimated standing timber, large and small, in the state, or two-thirds of the output of all he saw-mills of West Virginia in 1907.

"Money losses were heavy. The value of timber burned was $2,903,500. The losses in manufactured lumber, barns, building and other improvements amounting to $490,175. This year there was an unusually heavy damage to undergrowth and soil, and this has been placed at one dollar an acre for every acre burned, making a loss of $1,703,550 in the state. These losses total up to $5,097,825. The reported expenditures by the state and individuals for fire fighting from an interesting contrast to the loss of more than $5,000,000. The amount which county treasurers and companies are reported to have spent to suppress fires was only $846; individuals and companies are reported to have spent about $89,000.

"The injury to the soil from fire was much more severe this season in West Virginia than ever before, not alone because the burned area was larger than in any former years but also for the reason that excessive dryness exposed the humus to a greater depth. Ground fires have been unusual heretofore in this state, but this season they were common and widespread. Two human lives were lost in the fires.

"The mountain people fought fires in the past, whom they fought at all, by raking the leaves and sticks from a fire lane two or three feet wide and back firing. That method failed this year. Fires crossed the lanes by burning the humus beneath the surface and then started up on the farther side. The fires burned so deeply in the humus that an annual phenomenon was presented when a snow fall came in November. The snow apparently extinguished the fires but it went away quickly under the influence of a strong, dry wind, and the fires came up and out of the ground and were soon spreading again. I saw an interesting example of this. In the morning the snow in the wood was two inches deep, and no fire was to be seen. Before sunset the snow was gone and the leaves were burning.

"Large tracts of land on the high mountains were denuded of soil down to the rocks. Over much of the area where the Pitsville Conglomerate is the surface formation, there never was much mineral soil. Beds of moss, lichen, leaves and decaying wood form a covering for the rocks which gave an anchorage to the roots of the forest trees. Over extensive tracts, soils of that kind were absolutely destroyed."

THE NEW M. H. & E. RAIL ROAD.

Grade is Almost Completed East
Of Hartford and Track Will Be Laid soon.

Mr. R. W. Warfield of Hartford, resident engineer of the M. H. & E. R. R. Company told a representative of the Hustler while he was in Madisonville the other day that the company would finish the grading between Hartford and Mitchell's this month which would finish all the work of this character on that division of the road. The distance from Hartford to Mitchell's is 35 miles and it will be easily seen that much headway has been made on this new road that will mean a connecting link for the L. & N. railroad.

Grading between Hartford and Madisonville will commence immediately and Mr. Warfield says that it will be finished by May 1. Tracklaying will commence as soon as the grading is completed and the promoters are confident that trains will be running into this city by midsummer or by fall at the latest. It is 58 miles from Madisonville to Hartford and the road will have a total mileage of 98 miles.

This new line when completed will traverse a splendid agricultural territory and one that abounds in coal. It is understood that several mines will be opened along the road and stations established at different points to be selected by the management. Railroad shops will be located in Madisonville for the repair of the equipment of the company and the rolling stock used in the operation of the line will be modern and with a view of giving the public the best of service.

The rails used in the construction of the road will be of heavy material and the promoters will make efficiency and satisfactory service their chief aim in the operation of the road when it is ready for operation, —Madisonville Hustler.

We had hoped that the Brownsville episode had been closed, but it seems to have broken out afresh.

It has been pretty thoroughly settled that President Taft and uncle Joe Cannon will not engage in a political war for encouragement of the Democracy.

Old Santa Claus will find our stock hanging out at the same old place. It is true it will have a piece of twine tied around the lower end, in order to prevent loss through the hole which the pane has created but otherwise it is in good condition and more spacious than heretofore.

Since Kentucky has a Republican Governor the Hartford Herald favors establishing a Pardon Board, to whom application for pardon should be made and by whom a pardon should be granted or refused. Like many others of its kind the Herald would be glad to see Republican officials deprived of practically all their constitutional privileges.

Joe Blackburn says he is ready to resign as Governor of the Canal zone if Taft wants him to. A quarter million Kentucky Republicans would no doubt like for him to write the document, not because there would be an opportunity for any of them to land the job. But of all Democrats Joe Blackburn is the last that Kentucky Republicans want in office under a Republican Administration. He has fought Republicans harder and said more mean things about them than any other man in the State.

Some months ago we announced that we expected to make this paper a Twice-A-Week visitor to our subscribers after the first of Jan., 1909. At that time we had no doubt that the new railroad would be in operation to Hartford, giving us better mail facilities and otherwise placing us in position to make a venture of this kind a financial success. The completion of the railroad has been delayed and in consequence we will have to delay our improvement for a few months at least. We assure our readers, however, that this will have in contemplation this addition to our paper and expect to make the change just as soon as conditions will warrant. In the meantime the present make up of the paper will be kept up to the highest standard for a country weekly and we shall have an eye single to the wants and tastes of our readers and friends at all times.

Certainly no one can deny that the American Society of Equity has been a benefit to the farmers of Ohio county, and incidently to the merchants and every professional man in the county. This being true why should the interests of the society be allowed to drag or seal of the members to die out? In the flush of victory we should not allow the camp fires to go out, nor should we become intoxicated with the fruits of our victory to a degree that will deaden our sensibility to the danger from the enemy. Vigilance is the price of liberty. Let the friends of the American Society of Equity in Ohio county re-organize every local union which has gone to sleep, and place a new one in every locality where one has not existed heretofore. Let us see to it that the society has 3,000 members in Ohio county before mid-summer. A plan of action should be agreed upon and every man who has the cause at heart should be willing to give some of his time to the work. The editor of this paper expects in a short time to be able to offer his services and to go into every part of Ohio county in an effort to renew and build up the organization stronger than ever.

Ladies Social Club.

One of the most unique entertainments ever given in Hartford was enjoyed by the members of the Social Club Wednesday 16th, at the attractive home of Mrs. Z. Wayne Griffin;

Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Williams entertaining. The fun began with the first contest, every conceivable stunt was worrying the fertile brain of these versatile ladies and they kept their guests on the qui vive from start to finish. Sewing, talking, walking, blindfold and many others. Miss Lida Morton was the fastest walker, Mrs. Glenn the greatest talker and Mrs. Holbrook and Mrs. Vickers each received a reward of merit in the sewing contest. A delightful two course luncheon was served tempting to both sight and taste. Three new members were cordially received. So another brilliant success has been scored for the Social Club and each member feels that it was a social privilege to have been present.

Sunday School Convention.

At the Rockport Magisterial District to be held at Rend on Sunday, Dec. 20, 1908, from 1 to 3 p. m.

1:00—Devotional Exercises.
1:15—Object of the Meeting—by President, S. A. Reynold, and report from all District Officers.

1:30—Why have S. S. Conventions?

—E. W. Ford, County President.

1:40—The Needs and a report of my School—by all officers and teachers present.

2:00—The Winter School—by Rev. Jas. T. Casebier.

2:15—Question Box. We hope to have Rev. T. C. Gebauer to answer all questions put to him.

2:30—Election of officers and offering.

2:45—Topic and speaker to be assigned later.

The County Sunday School Association lacks about fifteen ($15.00) dollars of having enough to pay off all indebtedness for the year. If only half of the schools would pay one cent for each scholar enrolled, the year could be closed with money in the treasury. Now won't you help?

Send your offering to Miss Anna Patterson, Sec'y, and Treas., Hartford, Ky., right away, please.

Pastor A. B. Gardner will preach at the Baptist church in Beaver Dam Sunday Dec. 20 at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. The subject at 11 a.m., "The act of Christian Baptism," at 7 p.m., "The subject for Christian Baptism." As truth and duty to God are the things desired, the preaching will be without reference to any existing denomination or creed. All are cordially invited to attend both services.

SAVED FROM THE GRAVE.

How a Dream Rescued Woman From a Terrible Death.

Mr. Jones was a popular young business man in the city of B. His wife was a woman of strong emotion and most delicate perceptions. Between them there existed a rare sympathy which extended to all the faculties.

Mrs. Jones fell ill, and after a few weeks' agony, during which her husband waited on her with a constancy not often seen, she died—that is, she appeared to be dead. There was no question about it in the doctors' mind. A certificate was issued and an undertaker called in. But for the fortunate circumstance that Mr. Jones was opposed to embalming there would be no story to tell unless it were of another person apparently dead who was revived for a moment under the lunge of the embalmer's knife.

Saved from that fate, Mrs. Jones was laid out in her burial robe, placed in a coffin and on the third day was buried in a cemetery some distance away.

Her husband was greatly affected, so much that his relatives feared an attack of melancholia. His uncle, wishing to arouse his spirits and divert his attention, remained in the house the night after the funeral and was a valuable witness, as it proved, of an event so astounding as to be almost beyond belief.

For an hour or two that evening he talked chiefly about the dead and then went to bed. Mr. Jones, after tossing upon his pillow for a long time, fell into a troubled sleep. In the middle of the night he heard a voice calling his name, "George, George!" The tones were not familiar to him; they did not recall the voice of his wife.

Still concealing himself the victim of a dream, he again went to sleep. It was daybreak before the voice was heard again, and this time it could not be ignored. He recognized it at last as the voice of his wife in sore distress calling upon him. She cried:

"George! Save me! Save me, George!"

He sprang out of bed, trembling all over. That despairing cry still rang in his ears. So real was it that, although he was awake and remembered perfectly the death, the funeral and all that happened in the preceding four days, he searched the room for her who had three called him by name.

Finding that he was alone, he rushed into his uncle's room crying: "Get up! Get up! We must go to the cemetery! She is alive! She is calling me!"

The uncle, skeptical as he was by nature, was carried away by Jones' impetuosity. Both men threw on some clothing, and, while one harnessed a horse to a light buggy, the other procured spades. Thus equipped, they drove to the cemetery at a gallop. The sun rose as they leaped out at the grave and began to dig.

Mrs. Jones had been buried the previous afternoon. Her husband shovelled away the earth in a frenzy of energy. It was firmly fixed in his mind that she had been buried alive and that he might yet be in time to save her. Inspired by his nephew's excitement, the uncle dug with a vigor almost as great as Jones'.

Begrimed and disheveled, they at last reached the coffin and wrenched off the lid. Jones shrieked. His wife was moving. She was trying feebly to turn over in her narrow bed. She gazed at him with eyes that saw not. She was unconscious of her situation.

He passed his arms about her and lifted her out. The two men removed her from the grave, placed her in the buggy and drove home. Physicians were called in. Under close medical care she slowly recovered. Every precaution was taken to guard her from the knowledge of what had happened, and all who were in the secret pledged themselves to silence lest the shock of that revelation of her burial and resurrection might prove fatal to her, but the story leaked out later, when Mrs. Jones got about again.—Baltimore Sun.

For Those Who Wish to Gain in Flesh.

When the lawyers of Harry Thaw made a plea a short time ago to have the prisoner removed from one institution to another on the ground that he was being kept exclusively on a diet of bread and potatoes they at once sounded a note of cheer to the enormous Army of the Thin. For the argument of counsel was that the potato diet made Thaw take on weight, which he didn't at all want to take on, and it is this argument a careful inquiry into the antecedent and actions of the potato, with a view to its possible adoption as a cure for the lean.

One physician who was asked about the effect of potato eating upon the system, said: "Yes undoubtedly the eating of potatoes will make one fat if anything will. But I do not believe an exclusive diet of potatoes would long agree with any person. Not that the potato in itself is not a valuable food product, for it is, but because it does not contain all the elements required by the system. A person could not live long on a potato diet without harm, would become a prey to indigestion. But a diet of, say, bread and butter and potato might not prove injurious, if the person taking it would also take a great deal of bodily exercise. It is because of the starch and water in the potato that it is bound to fatten those who eat it regularly and it should be avoided by persons with a tendency to rheumatism and indigestion. Taken with other foods, the potato is one of the greatest fatteners known to the medical profession."

And this is how Mr. Potato is made up getting an analysis from many different potatoes examined:

	Per cent
Water	76.00
Starch	19.68
Sugar	1.20
Albumen	.70
Gum	.40
Asparagin	.30
Fat	.30
Solatin	.05
Other nitrogenous substances	.15
Insoluble matter	.40
Ash	.82
Total	100.00

When you get a food containing 95 per cent of water and starch you get something that's bound to put on the pounds.

The trouble with the potato diet in the opinion of one doctor is that it is too bulky. For said he: "Even granting that 6 pounds of potatoes a day is sufficient to supply fully all the needs of the body, it must be evident that this quantity is still unduly bulky, weighing as it does about 100 pounds."

The speakers were Chief Justice Ed C. O'Rear of the Appellate Court and the Hon. Campbell Cantrill president of the American Society of Equity in Kentucky. The meeting was presided over by Judge John W. Hughes who was one of the leaders in the organization of the Equity Society.

The speech of Judge O'Rear was one of the ablest ever heard here on the tobacco question and showed great research and learning. Going back to the Sixteenth century he gave a history of the important part tobacco has occupied in the commercial interests of the country, showing that it was the chief commodity produced by the colonies of Virginia before the birth of Kentucky. In the course of his speech he severely scored Gov. Wilson. While he did not use the Governor's name, his remarks could not be misunderstood, and they met the hearty approval of the tobacco growers.

Mr. Cantrill reviewed the long struggle of the society and told how the loyal ones brought about the great victory that had been won. He made an earnest plea for all those who had been against the society to come over and make a united Kentucky. He said that with the Government of Kentucky and all great warehouses and many of the State's best men against the society it made the victory which had been won all the more glorious.

The meeting this afternoon will have the effect to strengthen the movement in Mercer county and should the opportunity be given to pool their tobacco next year the growers will almost to a man enter the organization.

The

Photographing Aileen.

By LITTELL M'CLUNG.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Marvin Morton, with some little experience at snapshotting as an incentive, decided to go in for amateur photography on a more extensive scale. Straightway he went to a fashionable dealer and bought an expensive camera, with plate holder attachment.

"I'll call by for it tomorrow morning," he told the clerk. "Please be sure to have a couple of plates in the holder, for I want to take some pictures if the weather is fine."

"I'll have the plates put in and everything ready for you, sir," the salesman replied.

Then Marvin began to think of what he should most like to snap with his new camera. There were the new library, the new custom house, the new art gallery. But somehow or other none of these marble structures appealed to him.

"There's nothing like a human subject when it comes to photography," he mused. The next thought followed naturally. "And the best of human subjects is a pretty girl in a pretty gown!"

A moment later he was talking over the telephone.

"Hello, Aileen! I've just bought a new camera," he announced.

"Indeed, Marvin, that's interesting," came back over the wire. "And what are you going to do with it?"

"Take some pictures of Aileen if she'll let me," he replied.

"Oh, that will be splendid!" she exclaimed. "And when are you going to take them?"

"Tomorrow morning if you say so." "All right. I've got nothing on hand for tomorrow morning," she answered. "Where shall we go?"

"Out into the park."

"Then I'll don a frock that will be in accord with the setting," she laughed.

Aileen was as good as her word, for when Marvin stopped for her next morning, camera in hand, she wore the smartest blue suit imaginable, almost matching the clear autumn sky.

"Oh, I know we will have a nice little expedition," she ventured. "And I'm to have my picture taken for why, let me see—for the first time since early spring. Let me get a peep at your new camera. It's a beauty, isn't it?"

"Yes," he replied. "It is supposed to do extra fine work. You see, I am somewhat of a novice, and the camera has to be a good one for me. This one has a holder for plates at the back. I've never used plates before, but the clerk filled up the holder for me, and I'm going to try them this morning."

Soon they were strolling down one of the velvety slopes of the park. The leaves were falling from the larger trees, but the occasional bushes were as green as in springtime.

They passed a lake, and presently they came into a little glen that ran up against a hillside.

"This ought to be a fine place for the pictures," he suggested. "Suppose you strike a pose—anything you like!"

"Well, how's this, Sir Photographer?" she queried, putting her closed parasol back over her shoulder and holding it at both ends—as a huntsman sometimes carries his gun—and throwing her head back in a merry laugh.

"Very fetching," he commented, "but I believe that with the parasol up and a side view would be even more so. Try it, if you don't mind."

She turned slightly, opened the parasol and held it back over her shoulder with one hand. Her dainty head was silhouetted against the turquoise sky, for she was standing on the slope several feet above him.

"This one's a stunner!" he declared, shifting his position. Then he drew out of the plate holder the thin little board protecting the first plate, and click, it was over.

"How did I look?" she questioned, with an alluring glance.

"How did you look?" he repeated. "Why, you were—but please don't ask me such questions, for the first thing you know I'll be telling you more complimentary things than would be good for you—or me either!"

"Oh, very well," she laughed, shrugging her shoulders prettily. "Now what am I to do for picture No. 2?"

"Let's have this one sitting down," he requested.

She assented by seating herself on the slope and gazing at him seriously with her chin poised on her dainty little fist.

"Don't look so solemn," he protested. "You're not posing as a tragedy queen!"

"Well, then, how's this?" she asked, resting her chin between both hands and smiling radiantly.

He suppressed a reply and concentrated his attention on catching that bewitching, tantalizing smile.

"I've surely got it!" he thought, as he withdrew the second plate protector.

"That was prettier than the other if comparisons are not distasteful," he opined. "Now if you will!"

But of a sudden something caused him to rivet his glance on the plate holder side of the kodak. Then he pulled out one of the thin protectors and peered more closely at the box-like arrangement. With a look of disgust he shook the camera savagely.

"Well, I am a prize goose!" he muttered.

"Why, what's the trouble, Marvin?" she questioned, coming up close and looking at the camera.

"What's the trouble?" he schooled.

"There's trouble a-plenty. All your posing has been for naught. There's not a single solitary plate in this blooming thing! Look at it!"

"Oh, how funny!" she gurgled. "How did it happen?"

"It happened because that forgetful clerk failed to put in the plates after solemnly assuring me that he would!" he answered. "Well, there's nothing to do but come out here again some time. Let's go over and sit down under that big tree and chat awhile and try to laugh off this fiasco."

She readily agreed, and they sat down on a rustic bench and commented on their failure.

"Just to think those poses had to be lost on an unappreciative camera!" she complained, with a little pout.

"Yes, it was a pity," he agreed. "But, after all, they weren't lost on an unappreciative photographer!"

"Really, weren't they?" And her eyes flashed pleasurable surprise.

"I should say not," he affirmed earnestly, his voice unsteady. "For a long time I shall remember them, I think."

She was silent as she looked at him questioningly.

"Aileen," he continued, his tone lower, "don't you know that somewhere in my mind there is a camera that always has plates ready for use? With it I have taken a thousand pictures of you, Aileen, in all your moods. Often, day and night, I go over this lovely picture gallery of my memory—one that all the money on earth could not buy!"

"Some of the portraits are blurred a little, but the rest are as bright as when they first appeared. Somehow I think none of them will ever fade entirely. Many show you laughing and happy. Others depict you smiling and wistful. Some are vivacious, some demure, others coy and quaint, a few stormy and revengeful, but all are precious to me. One—must I tell you of that?—shows you with a young man in the moonlight. It's a beautiful gallery, my dear; the most beautiful, I am sure, in all the world!"

She was gazing at him now with a new look in her eyes—the look of tender appeal. Her hand rested gently on his arm.

"Marvin, dear boy," she whispered. "I do so hope your picture gallery will always be bright; that none of the pictures will ever fade away."

"Do you really, dear?" he asked eagerly.

"Yes, very, very much," she answered.

"Then there's one sure way of having them always clear and bright," he said.

"How is that?" she asked, with an encouraging smile.

"By having the subject always present," he declared, the twinkle returning to his eyes. "Is she willing?"

"With you as photographer, Marvin? Yes. She's been willing for quite a long time!"

"After all," he commented as they walked homeward, "this picture taking expedition without plates has been the most successful of my whole life."

"Bubbles" and Science.

Until Lord Rayleigh supplied the missing explanation scientific men had never been able to explain how it is that a soap bubble can exist. It is only with a very few liquids that soap bubbles can be blown. The reason is that some cannot lather even if shaken up vigorously, while others lather with complete ease. The natural question therefore arose, "Why is it that some liquids lather and others will not, and how is it that a sphere of liquid film of almost infinitesimal thickness can exist in a still moist atmosphere for hours and even days?" This was all exhaustively explained for the first time by Lord Rayleigh.

The explanation is partly a question of physics and chemistry, and it may be succinctly described, according to Sir Oliver Lodge, as follows: "A surface which possesses the minutest trace of scum has less tension than a clear or lesser scummed surface, and such a scum, no matter how thin it may be, has the tendency to slide down if its liquid support or foundation displays any inclination to the horizon. Furthermore, a lathering liquid has a complex and resistible constitution sufficient to yield by partial dissociation, owing to the tension of the surface, a quasi solid scum, while the constant tendency of the viscous liquid to slip between two layers of scum is a very slow process."

Reportorial Persistence.

Once a reporter went to a certain residence in New York to get details about the master of the house, who had just died, in order that an obituary notice might appear in the newspaper which he represented. Such details, as a rule, are easy to get. The reporter, therefore, was intensely surprised when the widow of the deceased, with scarcely a word, slammed the door in his face.

She retired into the house. Presently the doorbell rang furiously. She refused to stir. Again the doorbell rang, more furiously than before. Still the lady of the house would not stir.

"I have told him that I don't want to say anything about my husband," she thought to herself, "and he has no right to be so persistent."

So she sat still while the doorbell rang again and again and again.

At last she could stand it no longer, so, opening a window over the front door, she poked her head out and remarked severely:

"Young man, I do not desire to say anything to you. Kindly do not disturb me any more. Go away, young man."

"I can't!" roared the reporter, beside himself with exasperation. "You have shut my coat tails in the door!"

A TRIPLE SURPRISE.

It Came With a Pleasant Owing in a New Auto Car.

A well known author, who for some years has been an enthusiastic admirer of the automobile, had an amusing experience, which she describes in the Bohemian. A new model always attracted her attention, she declares, and when she came out of the New York hotel where she was staying and saw a fine new car standing unoccupied by the curb she stopped to admire it.

While I examined it and gazed with envy a friend, also interested in autos, came down the steps and approached the machine.

"Isn't it stunning?" he said.

I agreed enthusiastically and added that the machine was tantalizing me, as I did so long to take a spin, that I was afraid to run my car through the city.

"Why, I will take you," he said. "I haven't anything to do this afternoon. Where shall we go?"

We got in, and I suggested Coney.

To make a long story short, the delightful ride gave us an appetite. We stopped for dinner and then went out to See Gate to call upon friends. As we were crossing the bridge on our way home at about 11 o'clock my friend inquired, "At what garage do you keep your machine?"

At the question a terrible possibility dawned upon me, and with the remembrance of a certain unfamiliarity that he had displayed at the first in regard to the running of the car the situation became instantly clear. He had thought that the machine was mine, and I had been equally secure in the belief that it was his. In other words, we had calmly gone off with some one else's property.

You may imagine our feelings. We felt confident that we would be arrested on our way uptown. We rolled up to the hotel inwardly quaking.

After much inquiry and explaining we found the indignant owner. Fortunately he knew me slightly and had a well developed sense of humor, in spite of a rather forbidding expression as we first faced him, with our unfortunate story. I think he believed us.

His parting remark, however, was rather puzzling, although he said it with evident cordiality:

"Whenever you'd like to use the machine again just let me know."

A SURPRISED CAT.

Gautier's Pet and Its Experience With a Parrot.

Of all cat stories the best is one told by Theophile Gautier, the French novelist. He kept many cats, the favorite being "Madame Theophile," and she was his constant companion by day and night. One day a friend, who was going away a short time, brought Gautier a parrot, to be taken care of during his absence. The bird, finding itself in a strange place, climbed up to the top of its perch in a rather frightened manner. Madame Theophile had never seen a parrot before and regarded the creature with manifest surprise.

After a period spent in profound meditation, summoning up all the notions of natural history she had picked up in the yard, the garden and on the roof, she plainly came to the conclusion that the newcomer was a green chicken. This result attained, the next proceeding of Madame Theophile was to lay herself flat on the floor, like a panther, watching her prey. The parrot did not like this at all; it ruffled its feathers and rattled its chain uneasily. Then Madame Theophile came creeping nearer, her nose quivering, her eyes half closed, while slight thrills of pleasure ran along her backbone at the idea of the meal she was about to make. Another moment and she sprang upon the perch.

The parrot instantly straightened up and said in a deep bass voice, "Have you breakfasted, Jacko?"

This utterance so terrified the cat that she sprang backward. All her ornithological ideas were overthrown. "And on what?" continued the parrot gravely. "Our sirloin?"

The cat cast a glance at her master as if to say: "This is not a bird. It is a gentleman. It talks!" And then she promptly hid herself under the bed, and from that refuge she could not be induced to stir during the whole day.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Adages of Morocco.

In an article on the people of Morocco a writer in Paris Figaro says: "They have some queer adages and some that closely resemble ours. Thus they say, 'The camel cannot see its hump, but plainly sees the one of its neighbor.' 'He who depends on his neighbor will go to bed hungry; 'A wise enemy is better than a stupid friend! 'Cross the rushing stream, but beware of the quiet, noiseless one; 'In this world there are three things not to be trusted—luck, women and horses; 'Mounting a horse, loosing the hunting dogs and hearing earrings rattle drive dull care away."

Stella's Dignity.

"Glenn paid me a dandy compliment last night, mother—one that will please you, too," said Stella Harding. "He was talking about the girls in this block and how disgusted the boys were getting with them. He said the trouble with the girls round here was that they had positively no personal dignity, and he never seemed to take into account that I lived in the block myself. But he made up afterward for forgetting. He said not much, I guessed, he didn't mean me; that I was noted for my dignity with all the fellows, and he'd often heard them speak of it. What do you say to that?"

Mrs. Harding was listening with motherly satisfaction. "How did it happen to occur to him that you might be applying it to yourself?" she asked.

"I put it to him straight. I just waited until he stopped for breath, and then I said, 'Well, Jim

Accused Bank Wrecker Attends Revival Every Night and Sunday During Trile.

The trial of James H. Parrish, charged with receiving money on deposit in the Owensboro Savings Bank and Trust Company, of which he was President when the bank was insolvent, has been in progress at Hawesville, Ky., the past week.

There are three Republicans and nine Democrats on the jury. Five belong to no church, two are Baptists, two are Methodists, two are Cumberland Presbyterians and one is a Catholic. The accused, having long been the chief pillar of the Baptist church in Owensboro and the founder of the Third Baptist church, the largest congregation and the one having the finest auditorium in the State, the church affiliation of the jury is considered important.

The opening features of the trial were of the most interesting and sensational character.

County Attorney C. M. Finn, of Owensboro, who is very active in assisting Prosecuting Attorney Ben D. Ringo in the prosecution, made the opening statement to the jury, telling what the Commonwealth would prove. He gave a recital of his proof expectancies, that exceeded the stories already published. He declared in strongest terms that the bank was insolvent on April 19, 1908, and long before, and that the fact was well known to James H. Parrish, its president. For weeks, he said, the bank had closed at night with less than $1,000 cash in its vaults or safe, though its books showed $1,000,000 of liabilities, as deposited by the people.

The law permitted loans of only a certain amount to one man, but this had been violated repeatedly by president Parrish, who had allowed his several brothers to borrow indiscriminately and they were all insolvent, said Mr. Finn. The law required reports to be made of the bank's condition at frequent intervals and in order to make a good showing in these reports the notes of men who had been adjudged bankrupt for several years were counted as valuable assets, and large amounts of cash wrapped securely had been borrowed temporarily from other Owensboro banks and carried to this bank and held in it only long enough to be counted as assets of the bank and then returned with the wrapping unbroken.

James H. Parrish and T. S. Anderson, of the Daless County Bank and Trust Company, which had soon afterward failed, had used each other's papers for thousands as cash assets to make a good showing in the required reports.

Mr. Finn went into a detailed enumeration of the many corporations, mining and manufacturing, promoted by Mr. Parrish and in which he was a stockholder, director and officer and to which he had loaned without security very large sums of money, and it was a most remarkable circumstance that not a single one of all these enterprises with which Mr. Parrish had been connected had escaped bankruptcy.

The first witness was Dr. Ben L. Bruner, Secretary of State, who showed and read articles and amended articles of incorporation and also the reports of the bank immediately preceding its failure.

L. Courtney, formerly of Owensboro, but now of Louisville, was next examined. He was receiving teller of the failed bank. He gave facts as to the indebtedness of himself and two brothers to the bank for borrowed money in the sum of $8,000, though he had no property and he did not know what they had. He said J. H. Parrish had told him when to receive and when to refuse deposits. The Martin deposit on which this indictment is based was received before the order to refuse deposits had been given by Mr. Parrish.

William H. Martin testified as to the particular deposit of $120 made by his firm the day before the bank closed its doors.

Mrs. Nannie Whalen and Mrs. E. G. Monarch, of Owensboro, both widows, told a pathetic story of their depositing $3,500 and $300 in the bank. They said they had known Mr. Parrish for forty years. They told of their inability to get a cent out and also of the emphatic assurance of Mr. Parrish to them that the bank was all right.

James H. Keeley, cashier of the bank, read from the bank's books the record of the hasty loans of large amounts made and unmade for the sole purpose, as Mr. Finn charged, of making a good showing in the required reports. This testimony was the strongest showing possible in support of the indictment.

Many women including a number of widows now penniless testified to the effect that Parrish, only a few days previous to the banks closing its door induced them to deposit their money in his bank at the same time assuring them it was in good financial condition.

At the close of the evidence for the prosecution, Tuesday afternoon, Hon. R. W. Slack, senior counsel for the defendant stated the defendant's case to the jury, after which the defendant himself was placed on the stand and for several hours gave his version of the controversy. He contended from the inception of his evidence to its conclusion that the bank, when its doors were closed, April 20th 1908 was solvent and able to meet its each and every obligation.

He was questioned by Mr. Clements and took up practically every item of indebtedness stating that same was collectable. At the close of his direct examination Mr. Ringo began the cross examination and at the first question asked by him, Parrish asked for time to consult the records of the bank before replying. Thereupon his further cross examination was suspended for sometime, during the interval, numerous witnesses who testified to the good character and reputation of Parrish were introduced.

An incident which has attracted considerable attention during the trial is that Mr. Parrish has attended practically every night and Sunday services of the Baptist revival that is in progress in Hawesville where the trial is being held. He is a splendid singer and takes prominent part in the song services, his strong voice being heard above the choir at all times.

The trial will probably be concluded the latter part of this week or the first of next. As to what will be the outcome is hard to guess.

Mrs. Lottie Henry Dead.

The citizens of Hartford were sorry to have to witness the departure of Mrs. Lottie Henry on December 10, 1908. She moved to Heaven at 4 p.m. We know, as Paul says: "It was far better for her to depart and be with Christ," but for us who are left behind it seemed needful that she abide in the flesh—Phil. 1:23, 24. Our dear sister had finished her course and kept the faith and will receive the crown of righteousness when Christ comes to reward His saints.

Glory be to God! Mrs. Lottie Henry was a great worker in the vineyard of God. One of her noble deeds in Hartford was while a physical wreck she was the indication of the Women's Aid purchasing an excellent bell for the M. E. colored church which was very much needed and highly appreciated. She leaves a loving husband, one dear sister and two brothers and a host of friends.
